Kevin Giles latest, and he says, his final book is a challenging look at the practical outworking of a strongly complementarian view of gender relations in the church and home. You can order it online or directly from Kevin himself if you have his contact details.

Here is a link to a review from Jesus Creed, pat of Christianity Today.

Kevin Giles, in his new book â€“ one more than he thought he would ever write â€“ explores the connection of complementarianism and male abuse of women. Is there correlation? Causation? A connection at all? His book is called The Headship of Men and the Abuse of Women: Are They Related in Any Way?
